October seemed to fly by in a flash. Where did October go? I don't know!

GOTV All Candidates Forum:

Congratulations to Bailey Harray for organizing a successful All Candidates forum. I am happy to see that all the Lethbridge candidates were in attendance, it certainly made for some interesting debate. If you are interested in seeing my notes from the forum, I am more than happy to forward them to you.

Cleaning the GA Room:

There I was, studying in the GA room before class, when Dhillon School of Business Rep Ismael Nieto walks in with a few garbage bags in hand. He tells me that he is here to clean up the GA room, and I look around. Indeed, the GA room needs to be cleaned, I don't think it has been cleaned in some years. So, Ismael and I spent the next hour and a half listening to Kanye West, and finding weird things in weird places and putting them away.

Meeting with First Year Representative:

I met with Mathieu Lebon-Viola this month to orient him to the role of First Year Representative. It is a difficult role, because it requires the rep to learn a lot and quickly, so I wanted to make sure I am available to Mathieu to help him with any questions he may have.

Let's Talk about Sex:

I would like to wish a well-deserved congratulations to Arts and Science Rep Amy Lambert for organizing this successful event. I helped pick up the prizes for the event, and then facilitated discussion centered around "The Sex Ed you wish you had". I believe it is very important to have peer to peer conversations about sex and consent in a university setting, because sexual assault and misconduct happen often on university campuses. I learned a lot while researching for this event, and I am excited that I had the opportunity to learn and hear different perspectives from my peers as well. I gained a lot more knowledge leading up to and during this event, and I think the event was successful in its goal of destigmatizing different aspects of sex and sexuality.

Volunteer Fair Tabling:

I volunteered to be a volunteer at the ULSU volunteer table at the volunteer fair. We got a few new sign ups for volunteers, which was good. I got to talk more to our volunteer coordinator, Paige Hutchinson, who is such a lovely person. If you would like to volunteer with the ULSU, I urge you to contact Paige!

Fine Arts Council:

At this Fine Arts Council meeting, we approved the recommendations from the Curriculum Coordinating Committees for some class deletions and changes. If you are curious about what these changes entail, please contact me.

Halloween Cabaret Set-up:

'Tis that time of year again, time for the Halloween Cabaret. Ah, what fond memories. Last year, effort was put into my costume, as I went as a "Strawberry". I went so far as to hand-decorate seeds onto my shirt, and hand make a headband that resembled a stem. This year, I wore sweatpants and said I was "going to walmart". So that gives you an indication of where I'm at at this point in the semester. Last year, I signed up to clean up after the cabaret, at like 3am. Big mistake. I did not make the same mistake this year, I only signed up to set up. Not to toot my own horn, but Dhillon School of Business Rep Mark Serebryansky and I did a phenomenal job making a photo wall out of spooky caution tape and duct tape. Congratulations to Ryan Munn for organizing an excellent cab that was enjoyed by all who came.

I wish all of you an excellent November, I hope that reading week has you refreshed and ready to close this semester with your best foot forward.
